FOREWORD

Birth centenary of Allama Iqbal was celebrated last year. The year long celebrations provided a stimulus to scholars of Iqbaliat to take a census of what has been contributed on Iqbal as a poet, philosopher and politician. As a result many bibliographies have come forward which provide approach to various type of material on the subject.

These bibliographies vary in their coverage, some cover books, some thesis and some articles. They further vary due to their limitations of language in which the material is written, and the period in which the material is published.

This bibliography is one of the links of a chain which the scholars have developed to bring the literature of Iqbaliat produced in various forms under bibliographical control. Mr. Mueen is a young enthusiast who has collected about nine hundred (900), articles in English published in one hundred and two (102), periodicals and newspapers up to the year 1977. This indeed is a commendable effort because it will help in the promotion of research. Although there are certain shortcomings of duplication of entries in this bibliography but still it will be a welcome addition to Iqbaliat and scholars will be benefited.

It will also provide incentive to young librarians of Pakistan to come forward and practically do something to solve the problems of bibliographical control being faced in various disciplines.

PREFACE

Iqbal is our national poet. He was not only a conventional poet, but also a philosopher, a politician and an intellectual. He contributed in our literature and poetry. He also contributed to the Pakistan Movement. Pakistan was established in 1947, after a great struggle. In our national history the great contribution of Iqbal is recorded in the perspective of this struggle. Thus besides his importance in literature and poetry, he is known as a prominent figure in the history of Pakistan.

In pursuance of the Government decision to celebrate 1977 as the birth centenary celebration year of Iqbal, the Iqbal Academy launched a programme to compile a bibliography on Iqbal. This bibliography is compiled by Prof. Raffiuddin Hashmi. Though it is a comprehensive bibliography yet it is limited to only books, and articles are not included in this bibliography.

Enough has been written on Iqbal's thought and political philosophy by the national and foreign scholars in journals and newspapers. The knowledge related to Iqbal, being published in the world is very important for Pakistani as well as for foreign research workers.

Researchers need such a tool which would help them to survey the literary out-put pertinent to Iqbal, published in and outside the country in periodicals and newspapers. Keeping in view this need, the present bibliography is a list of such significant writings published throughout the world during the period 1900-1977 in the newspapers and the periodicals in the English language.

To fill the lackage of articles in Hashmi's bibliography. This work is a humble attempt to the effect.

In this bibliography there are 900 articles approximately compiled from 102 periodicals and newspapers. A complete list of periodicals and newspapers consulted in this bibliography is given at the end.

The entries cited in this bibliography are obtained by a review of bibliographical sources, and literature available at the Iqbal Academy Library and the Punjab University Library, Lahore.

The references have not only been collected from published sources but unpublished sources have also been consulted. These unpublished sources are university dissertations and thesis. A complete list of sources consulted is given at the end.

Attempt has been made to make it as comprehensive as possible, yet some entries might have un-noticed. Apologies are extended to authors of Articles which were omitted because they were not accessible. The compiler will be thankful if all the missing titles are brought to his notice, so that these may be included in a supplementary listing or possibly in future more inclusive bibliography. I should like to extend my thanks to many persons who have spent some of their valuable time in providing guidance and to those who have assisted me in various ways.

I can't mention all of them here but I should like to thank my elder brother Malik Ahmad Nawaz of the Punjab University Library, for his keen interest in this project. His guidance was a great help to me. He also kept up my spirits when I was depressed by the length of the toil.

I am also grateful to my younger brother, Malik Mahmood Nawaz for his assistance. He spent long hours in reading, revising and arranging the material presented here and also helped me in reading the proofs.

The compilation of this work could not have been possible without the facilities by the National Fertilizer Corporation of Pakistan Limited where the compiler had the opportunity to complete his research work. My thanks are due to NFC, specially to its General Manager Finance, Mr. F. S. Aijazuddin and my friendly Boss Mr. Abdur Rasheed, Senior Manager Personnel and Mr. Maslehuddin Manager Personnel.

Finally, I should like to thank Mr. Mohammad Yaqub who has very kindly typed my manuscript in order to give it a final shape.
